

Most used, although alien in the space

Room as a novelty worth reflecting upon but not necessarily revisiting

Smartphone photography

The room becomes a spectacle from those heights

Generally from higher levels looking into the room

vs. pondering upwards

A plunging, downward experience

Intrusion, surveillance, voyeuristic considering relative privacy of ground-level experience

At a height looking down

Plunging into the phone (the future-past)

Potential for more focused time

A source of time & energy

Natural light opportunities makes daytime study desirable

Light

Green lamps at study desks

Creates more focused space

Light as a medium, a situation, enabling activity

Jarring, clashing with old wooden tables

Specifically creating space for the individual

An update to the space; an afterthought

A 'collision of time periods
